Mālō e lelei and welcome to the Ngāue Fakataha picture books

The ability to understand two languages is a valuable gift that your child will carry with them throughout life. The Ngāue Fakataha picture books are in both lea faka-Tonga and English, and are designed for children in early learning services. Your child's faiako (kaiako, teacher) will read them with your child at kinitakāteni, and you can read them with your child at home too.

Sharing a love of reading at an early age will enrich your child's imaginative play and help them to grow and learn.

Dual-language books encourage identity and culture

The Ngāue Fakataha books give the option of reading the stories in either lea faka-Tonga or English.

Reading the books in lea faka-Tonga will encourage your child to engage with and embrace their identity and culture. Grounding a child with a strong sense of who they are and where they come from has been shown to help them succeed at school.

It's also a good idea to encourage other family members, or friends, to read the books to your child as well. The more children are read to, the more success they will have when they come to learning to read by themselves.

Storytelling

Throughout history, stories have been told in many ways and forms. Support your child to understand how stories can be retold or expressed. Explain that stories can be retold or expressed through songs, chants, drumbeats, and dance actions; and through carvings and weaving patterns.

Tell lots of stories

- Read picture books and tell stories to your child.
- Encourage your child to tell their own stories. These could be stories they think up or retell in their own words (or with pictures). Telling their own stories fosters your child's oral language and helps them to order their ideas.
- Some stories have songs that go with them, and some songs have dances and actions. Sharing these is a great way to help your child find other ways to tell stories.

Sharing a picture book

Getting ready to read

- Let your child choose the book. Be ready to read their favourite picture books to them again and again.
- If you would like to listen to the story first, go to www.tewhariki.tki.org.nz/PELP. You can listen to these stories on your mobile phone, tablet, or computer.
 - Before you start reading, talk with your child about the story. Refer to the title and cover illustration to give them clues.

As you read the story to your child

Make the story interesting by varying your voice for each character, and/or use your face and body gestures to bring the story to life.

There are so many ways to share a picture book. For example, you could:

- simply look at the pictures and talk about what's happening, leaving the words for another time
- read the same book again and again
- skip some of the pages – you don't have to finish the book every time
- start reading at your child's favourite part of the story
- hand the book to your child and let them tell the story
- take turns at turning the pages
- hold a soft toy next to the book and let it tell the story.

As you read the story, help your child to think about what might happen on the next page. For example, “I wonder how he is going to get up the slide?”, “Do you think the ducks will like the food the children have brought?”

If you would like to watch videos of families demonstrating some of the ideas, go to www.tewhariki.tki.org.nz/PELP

Talk about the story and ask questions

A really good story makes us think about many things and introduces new ideas. The more we ask questions as we read, the more we get from a story.

- Before you start reading, you could say something about what is happening in one of the pictures or what the story reminds you of.
- When talking to your child, use some of the language from the book. This will help create links to the language used in the book and increase the number of new words your child is learning.
- As you talk back and forth, sometimes your child might just use a gesture – or they might want to act out part of the story.

Kinds of questions you can ask

You can ask different kinds of questions, as you share the stories with your child.

Questions about the word or pictures	“What is happening now ...?” “Where is ...?” “Who is ...?”
Questions about what might happen next	“Why do you think about ...?” “What might happen next?” “How do you think ... felt when ...?”
Questions that explore thoughts and feelings	“Was that a good thing to do? Why or why not?” “What else could she have done?” “What would you have done?”

Anga faka-Tonga

Many of our children are growing up in fāmili where they are surrounded by several languages, dialects, cultures, and beliefs. Share your family's traditions with your child, and talk about how and why things are done differently by other cultures.

The Ngāue Fakataha series includes stories that offer opportunities for talking about differences in our society. Borrow the books from your child's kinitakāteni and share them with your child at home.

Work together

There are wonderful things that you as a parent/caregiver can bring to your child's learning. You know your child better than anyone – what they are interested in, the things they like to do – share this knowledge with your child's faiako. Tell your child's faiako what unique abilities your child has, and the languages and dialects you use at home.

We are all learning new things together and we all have something to share. If you wish to, offer to share your culture (weaving, songs, dances, stories) at kinitakāteni.
